

Ultrasound Services For Large Animals

Ultrasound is a safe and effective way to help veterinarians diagnose and treat your animal. The most common ultrasound exam we do is to determine pregnancy. At just 28 days after breeding a cow can be diagnosed pregnant. At 60 days we can tell whether it's going to be a bull or heifer calf.

Our portable ultrasound machines have small screens so that you can see exactly what we see in the ultrasound image.

Other ways ultrasound can be utilized:

- Pregnancy diagnosis in large animals
- Reproductive exam in large animals (including goats, horses, cows and swine!)
- Abdominal ultrasound
- Chest ultrasound
- Ultrasound guided biopsy

Do you have a cow, goat, horse, llama or pig that needs an ultrasound exam?
